

APPLES FOR THE TEACHERS . . . Three senior coeds for Torrance reach for the apple that traditionally symbolizes the teacher. The girls, Patricia Wallace, North High; Marilyn Flynn, South High, and Kimlye Takeuchi, Torrance High, received scholarships for the Torrance Education Assn. The awards, presented by Willard G. Andreasen, president of the TEA, are valued at $600 each.

Rehearsal Problems Great For ECC Summer Drama

"Organized chaos" aptly describes the hectic activity of El Camino College drama classes as they prepare their annual summer theater productions.

Currently in rehearsal under the over-all supervision of Burnett Ferguson, El Camino drama instructor, are four plays, ranging in mood from the serious drama, "Juno and the Paycock," to the children's comedy, "New Clothes for the Emperor."

BECAUSE ALL four plays will be presented in as many weeks, problems of casting, staging, and rehearsing the production are intensified. Assisting Ferguson in telescoping several months' work into the tight schedule is Midge Kohlman, veteran actress of El Camino shows.

Easing the tensions which accompany any stage production is Les Thomas, whose stagecraft classes will design and construct the sets for four productions. El Camino theater patrons are familiar with the artistry of Thomas and his crew as displayed in "Romeo and Juliet," "Oklahoma," "Twelfth Night," and many other productions.

LUCILLE LIBERATORE, El Camino graduate, returns to direct the first of the shows, Sean O'Casey's drama, "Juno and the Paycock," scheduled for July 7 and 8. A favorite with drama students and audiences alike, the play deals with the Irish Revolution.

Presenting a picture of Irish tenement life in the turbulent war years, O'Casey underlines his bitter indictment of the stupidity of man through his combination of Irish comedy and sharp tragedy. The humor contrasts sharply with the tragic theme and simultaneously gives the viewer an insight into the character of the Irish people.

IN A LIGHTER mood is "Visit to a Small Planet," set to follow "Juno" on July 14-15. Mike Hector will direct this light comedy.

"New Clothes for the Emperor," a children's play, fills the third spot on the schedule, July 21-22.

SCHOLARSHIP WINNER . . . Robert Paul Weister, 17, Torrance High School graduate, is presented with the memorial scholarship of $500 honoring Sgt. W. R. Lewis of the Torrance Police Department who was killed on duty in 1958. Here Very Lewis, widow of the officer, makes presentation while Officer A. L. Jackson, president of the Torrance Police Officers Assn., looks on. Weister plans to attend Whittier College in the fall.
